Visas/Permanent Residence/Citizenship

Obtaining or keeping legal status in the United States is one of the most important occurrences in a non-citizen's life. Failing to fill out forms properly or on time may result in the loss of the opportunity to stay here legally.

At Prince Law Offices, we are experienced in obtaining visas for spouses and other relatives. We can guide you through the maze of forms necessary to obtain permanent residence and can help you to complete the paperwork and prepare for the citizenship/naturalization test.

We are also happy to assist in visa or permanent residence renewals or removal of conditional permanent resident status.

As practitioners in this field of law, we refuse to make false promises that you may have seen elsewhere. While Prince Law Offices cannot solve every immigration problem, we will provide you with a free consultation and an honest assessment of your situation.

You or your family member owe it to yourselves to have your documents thoroughly reviewed and prepared by an experienced professional.

Deportation/Removal

For some non-citizens, deportation proceedings (which are now known as "removal") are an unfortunate reality.

Thankfully, the immigration law does provide relief for non-citizens who have committed minor criminal offenses, have been unjustly convicted, or who cannot safely return to their home country.

We are experienced in fighting for Cancellation of Removal, Withholding of Removal and Asylum. We also are experienced in filing appeals/post conviction relief petitions in state court to overturn unlawful convictions.

If it appears that deportation will definitely occur, we can speed up the proceedings so that the return to the home country occurs as quickly as possible. We can also slow down the deportation process to ensure that the non-citizen has more time to spend with their family and resolve their affairs before having to leave the United States.

Just because an immigration case has been filed does not mean deportation will definitely occur. You owe it to yourself or your family member to have the case thoroughly reviewed and ensure that you understand all the available options.
